作者的話:

Hello, my name is Anjali Rawat. I am twelve years old. I am an Indian. I like reading books that are interesting, adventurous, mysterious, and sometimes funny. My partner who did the picture book with me was Shivia. Our picture book is quite meaningful, hope you like it. I chose to do this picture book because I think if anyone reads it, they will really treasure the people who love them and they will treat them nicely. Besides, I hope readers will get my message: if someone cares for you, you have to be nice in return. Hatred is a bad thing. It is wrong to treat our neighbors badly. So, I really hope you find my picture book meaningful. Thank you.

My name is Shivia Ganglani. I am 13 years old and am an Indian girl, my partner for this Chinese Picture book is Anjali.

This story is based on a real story told by my aunt. The main characters of this story are Rosie and a gardener. The moral of our story is that 'you should appreciate what others do for you' and that 'people who care about you do what is the best for you'. It is very important that we appreciate what people do for us because if we don't, then they will no longer be good to us.

I hope that you enjoy reading this story as we think it is a book which teaches us a few values of life.
